More about the Library

The collection now contains well over 1400 catalogued items, including many new audiovisual resources.

You can browse our catalog to see what materials of interest you might find by going to the link for our online catalog at:
<http://10.23.152.54/surpass/websafari.exe/>.
Adding this link to your favorites will let you easily check on what's new and relevant. Options for searching on Surpass are by author, title, subject, or keyword, and the system is very user-friendly and intuitive.

If anyone would like a brief tutorial on how to access the catalog and its contents, I would be happy to do a demonstration. All you have to do is send me an e-mail or give me a call to arrange the demo.

Attention, Corrections

The latest in Corrections news is now available to you in a publication entitled Corrections Reporter which can be found at <http://correctionsreporter.com/>. This publication is being launched by Syscon, the company responsible for Market Intelligence Digest.

Corrections Reporter strives to present the most updated news about corrections currently available without the bother of log-ins or passwords. Articles will be indexed by geographical location as well as by category to simplify searching for information. The current listing of links appears to be quite extensive, and the site looks like a worthwhile one to bookmark and refer to often.

What Else is New?

Below follow the newest list of titles that have arrived in the library to stimulate your research and instructional interests. They are:

Fingerprints: Analysis and Understanding—by Mark R. Hawthorne
(363.25 HAW)

Death Scene Investigation: a Field Guide—by Scott A. Wagner (614 WAG)

Contemporary Issues in Law Enforcement and Policing—edited by Andrew Millie and Dilip K. Das (363.2 CON)

Domestic Violence: Intervention, Prevention, Policies, and Solutions—by Richard L. Davis (362.82 DAV)

Criminal Investigative Failures—by D. Kim Rossmo (363.25 ROS)

The addition of these resources is the result of requests submitted by instructors. These five titles can be found with the circulating books on the shelves to your left as you enter the library.

Book Checkout and Return

When borrowing books from the library, please be sure to follow these few simple guidelines for proper checkout.

1) See the librarian at the checkout desk to check your materials out electronically.

- 2) If the librarian is not available, please use the checkout log located on the circulation desk—there is one for books and another labeled for journals. When handling checkout in this manner, please follow up with the librarian by e-mail in order to determine the due date for your materials.
- 3) When returning materials, be sure to see the librarian. If the librarian is not available, please leave a note with the returned items to ensure that they are checked back in properly.
- 4) Please DO NOT return your books or other materials to the shelves where you took them. By leaving them at the circulation desk, I can keep track of what has been returned.
- 5) If you have left materials at the circulation desk and aren't certain that you followed the right procedures, give me a call or send me an e-mail. This will alert me to the fact that you have checked out or returned items, and I can take it from there.

I appreciate your cooperation on this.

NAMI of Baltimore

The following is excerpted and edited from a recent press release by the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI)--Metropolitan Baltimore.

A new book published by NAMI—Metropolitan Baltimore entitled Beyond Punishment: Helping Individuals with Mental Illness in Maryland's Criminal Justice System provides a first-of-its-kind, comprehensive practical guide to assisting individuals with mental illness who interact with Maryland's criminal justice system. Without proper intervention, mentally ill persons may cycle repeatedly through the criminal justice process, at great public expense and great trauma to the individual and the family.

Made possible by a grant from the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation, this book provides information and critical resources to family members and others concerned about people who are involved with the criminal justice system, whether in jail awaiting trial, in prison serving a sentence, or on probation or parole. It also discusses ways to help prevent a mental health crisis from leading to an arrest and subsequent involvement in the criminal justice system, as well as how to get mental health crisis services, including voluntary and involuntary evaluations.

The Maryland Division of Correction, as well as other organizations around the state, plans to widely distribute copies of the book. NAMI—Metropolitan Baltimore will also distribute the book through its network of support groups, its assistance phone line, website, and other means.

The book provides important general information about Maryland's criminal justice system as well as local information about resources within Baltimore City and Baltimore County. It is designed to serve as a template that groups in other areas of the state can use with local information in their areas. The national NAMI organization also intends to make the book available to other NAMI affiliates outside Maryland, who could then customize the information to reflect their local criminal justice systems.

NAMI Metropolitan Baltimore is an independently incorporated, governed, and funded affiliate of NAMI Maryland and NAMI: National Alliance on Mental Illness and is regularly recognized as a leader in the areas of advocacy for mental illness issues and in the development of programs and outreach tools for a variety of audiences.

Daily Newspaper Request

Please be aware that the library receives one copy of the Carroll County Times to serve the entire agency. If there is an article that you would like to preserve, you may request permission from the librarian to borrow, copy, and then return the issue in question. It is only fair that all who wish to check the daily paper have the opportunity to do so.

Note the sign at the circulation desk that explains this library policy. Your cooperation is greatly appreciated.
