Available for the taking...

At the circulation desk, you will find copies of the publication entitled Public Health Emergency Response: A Guide for Leaders and Responders.

A library may look like a single building, but please don't be misled by the walls. It's a single link in an enormous chain. It's a single being in a gigantic ecosystem of words and thoughts and ideas.

~Shula Klinger, Richmond, BC. Quoted in Beyond Words: BC's Public Libraries Are Changing Lives. (found on <http://marylaine.com/exlibris/cool.html>)

published by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in August 2007.

These have come to us from the Maryland State Police, courtesy of Capt. Mark Gibbons, and we hope they will be useful to many of you. So just stop by and pick one up!

More on Corrections Reporter

The new online publication, Corrections Reporter, has made great strides since its debut in early February. There have been 228 articles pertinent to corrections that have appeared and the coverage has encompassed 43 states, 116 counties, and 17 countries.

Among the topics that Corrections Reporter has already covered include: food service, parole, juvenile justice, gangs, sentencing reform, and inmate health care.

If you didn't take a look last month, go to www.correctionsreporter.com to see for yourself. Once on their site, you can sign up for their daily e-mail digest that will help to keep you informed about all the latest correction news.

Remember that our collection needs YOU to grow!

We want the collection to continually expand in order to reflect trends and changes in the fields of law enforcement, corrections, management, and the many other areas that impact on what goes on in our agency and in the training we do. So please let me know when you come across a resource, whether a book, a DVD, or other publication, that will be important for our agency staff to access.

Acquisition of new materials is ongoing throughout the year and your recommendations help the library collection reflect the important new developments and happenings in the field.

Wishing all of you a wonderful start to the spring season!
