Miracle On 4th Street

My preparations for the holiday season were somewhat distracted by the preparations for the ceremonies to dedicate the Public Safety Education and Training Center. As a result, when the classic holiday movies started to appear I couldn't help but blend the sentiments of The Miracle on 34th Street and the culmination of nearly two decades of efforts that saw the official opening of the Center at our new address on 4th Street at the Springfield Hospital Center. While one is a fictional depiction of the spirit of Christmas, the other is a true-to-life testimony of the commitment of the State of Maryland to the safety of its communities.

The dedication of the Police and Correctional Training Commissions' Public Safety Education and Training Center was witnessed by over 400 invited guests, including state and local elected officials, police and correctional administrators, and others who contributed to creating the Center. It featured comments from Mary Ann Saar, Secretary for the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services, and Colonel Thomas E. Hutchins, Secretary of the Department of State Police. The keynote speaker was Governor Robert L. Ehrlich, Jr. In his remarks, Governor Ehrlich commented on the critical role education and training plays in the development of public safety officers.

The Center will be a focal point of training not only for officers, but for supervisors, administrators and future leaders. At the conclusion of his comments, Governor Ehrlich presented Secretary Saar with a Commendation declaring November 30, 2004 "Public Safety Education and Training Center Day" in Maryland. He also presented a State flag to Secretary Saar to be flown over the Center's Administration Building.

In addition to the music provided by local high school students and Major Greg Shipley of the Maryland State Police, those attending were treated to a "parade of colors" as color guards from state and local police departments and correctional institutions marched to the melodic and stirring strains of bagpipes. The official ceremonies ended with the raising of the American flag, the Maryland flag and the banner of the Department of Public Safety. Before leaving, Governor Ehrlich took time out of his pressing schedule to visit each of the assembled classes that were enrolled at the Center.

EXECUTIVE DEVELOPMENT INSTITUTE UPDATE

By: Theresa Satterfield, Administrator

LEADERSHIP CHALLENGE XIV

Leadership Challenge XIV's first session was held at the Baltimore City Community College and the topic was Education. The speakers provided interesting and thought provoking information. The November session focused on Leadership Principles and the December session was Homeland Security.

EXECUTIVE SEMINARS

Several new and repeat one-day leadership/managerial courses have been added. These programs are receiving high marks. The Executive Development Institute's program schedule is in Training Notes. The schedule is updated as necessary. There is a nominal fee and space is limited. Notices are mailed to the Executive Officer of each agency and to the Academy Directors approximately 6 - 8 weeks in advance of the program. These programs are open to all staff, uniformed and non-uniformed alike, who want to be better leaders and managers.

MID MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS - CORRECTIONS

Plans are in the works to schedule three programs in 2005.

WORKLOAD ANALYSIS AND RESOURCE ALLOCATION

Check the schedule for future offerings.

MANAGING THE MARGINAL EMPLOYEE

See the Institute's 2004-2005 Program listings for specific dates.

QUARTERLY TRAINING

The Training Committee of the Maryland Correctional Administrators Association will be scheduling this year's sessions. The Committee is tentatively looking at scheduling a session on Jail Evacuations in the near future. More information will be forthcoming. If you have suggestions for topics for the upcoming year please notify a member of the Committee.

The Training Committee of the Maryland Chiefs of Police Association will be scheduling this year's sessions. A survey has been sent to the members for suggested topics for the Conference and the trainings. If you have suggestions for future topics please contact a member of the Committee.

WOMEN LEADERS IN PUBLIC SAFETY SERIES

The executive series for Women in Public Safety is up and running and has been well received. Additional topics have been added. See the Institute's Program listings.

LOCAL EXECUTIVES PROGRAM

Again this year, another program was held in Ocean City November 7 - 10, 2004. Wardens and Directors from around the State shared their expertise and knowledge. This program was funded through a Professional Development Grant to the Maryland Correctional Administrators Association. This year's program included sessions on MERSA, Legal Issues, Less Lethal and Less than Lethal Use of Force, Prescription Drug Costs for Correctional Facilities and several other topics of interest to local correctional administrators. The program was very well received.

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS BILL OF RIGHTS (LEOBR)

An LEOBR class was held at the PSETC in Sykesville on Oct. 21 & 22, 2004. The Chiefs Legal Advisors group provided instructors for the course and approximately 60 individuals from 28 agencies participated in the program.

The program received excellent reviews and plans are in the works to schedule additional programs in the future.

WOMEN WORKING IN CORRECTIONS AND JUVENILE JUSTICE CONFERENCE

Thanks to all those who helped make this Conference such a huge success and the agencies who supported it by sending staff. Over 800 individuals from around the country participated and gave glowing reviews to the workshops and speakers.

Miracle On 4th Street

Although scheduled for less than two hours, the dedication ceremony seemed disproportionately brief when compared to the years of effort it took to plan, promote, design and erect, the Center. And I am confident even those years will eventually seem brief when, after decades of training many generations of law enforcement and correctional officers, we look back to the day of the dedication ceremony for the Maryland Public Safety Education and Training Center.

I do wish to thank Governor Ehrlich, Secretary Saar and Superintendent Hutchins for their participation in our day of celebration as well as all those who were able to attend. Now that the dedication honors are complete, its time to get down to the business of the Police and Correctional Training Commissions, which is:

"...to ensure the quality of law enforcement and correctional services through the establishment and enforcement of standards and the facilitation and delivery of training, education and prevention programs."

LEGAL NOTES

by Holly Knepper, Assistant Attorney General
Maryland Police and Correctional Training Commissions

Authority to consent to search.

Patricia Ann Farley threw herself in front of a police car and told police a man just threatened to shoot her while they were exchanging sex for drugs. She showed police the house where it happened, and they knocked and asked the girl who answered the door if there were any males at home. She said her brother was home and let the officers in to meet James Rowlett. He denied Farley's story, but Farley identified him. Rowlett's mother arrived, and told police Rowlett just got out of jail on a handgun charge. Police told her a gun could be in the house and asked to search Rowlett's room. Mrs. Rowlett said Rowlett stays in that room only when her granddaughter is not home. She said he did not pay rent and then showed her driver's license and signed a consent for a search of the house. Rowlett did not object or ask police to leave, but became agitated and angry. The search of Rowlett's room turned up a gun. Rowlett was arrested, and during the search incident, police found a crack pipe on him.

The suppression court suppressed the evidence, finding that although Mrs. Rowlett had authority to consent to a search of Rowlett's bedroom, that authority did not trump Rowlett's opposition to the presence of the police on the premises. The Court of Special Appeals reversed, holding Mrs. Rowlett had authority to consent in her own right and on her granddaughter's behalf. She also had apparent authority because it was reasonable for police to believe she had authority to consent. Although Rowlett was present when his mother consented, he did not challenge her right to consent, ask police to leave, or otherwise object to the search. Even if his behavior were construed as an objection, it did not override his mother's consent: "Consent to search given by a 3rd party having common authority over the premises is sufficient to authorize a search even when the defendant is present and objects." State v. Rowlett, __Md.App.__ (2004).

No standing to object to search.

When two plainclothes police officers doing an undercover drug buy in Baltimore identified themselves as police, Kevin Alston pulled a gun from his pants, and ran inside a house. Police followed him into the house, and heard footsteps run downstairs into the basement, pause, and come back upstairs. Police intercepted Alston in a common stairway area of the house, where he was arrested and searched. Alston did not have the gun, so police went into the basement, did a 'cursory search,' and found the loaded gun in a ceiling rafter. They also saw a woman asleep.

Alston was charged and moved to suppress the gun. At the suppression hearing, Alston testified that on the day in question, "Jerry" (last name unknown) lived in the 2nd floor apartment of the house, and a guy whose name he did not know lived in the 1st floor apartment. The woman was renting the basement, and Alston had an intimate relationship with her. Though he had been going there to see her for a couple of months, sometimes spending the night, there was no evidence he was an overnight guest on that day. Alston did not keep any belongings there, did not have a key, did not get mail there, and his permanent address was a place where he'd lived for about 16 years. The suppression court ruled Alston did not have standing to argue that the search of the house was illegal because he did not have an expectation of privacy there. The Court of Special Appeals affirmed, holding that Alston's status did not give him a sufficient privacy interest in the house to object to its search. Alston v. State, __Md.App.__ (2004).

Detainee suicide - liability of arresting officer.

During a drug relapse, Robert Clementson, Jr. stole jewelry from his mother, Lois Kunkoski. Kunkoski filed for charges with a District Court commissioner in Carroll County, and stated on the application her son threatened to commit suicide if she filed charges. The commissioner issued charges and an arrest warrant based on her application, and about 30 days later Baltimore Police arrested Clementson and transported him to CIBC. Clementson suffered from depression; he committed suicide at Central Intake and Booking Center (CIBC) by hanging himself with a sheet tied to a sprinkler. Kunkoski sued various Baltimore Police, CIBC, and State officials. In the claims against the police, she alleged Baltimore Police had a duty to find out about a detainee's suicide risk and intervene on behalf of arrestees who could pose a suicide risk when delivering them to CIBC. Specifically, Kunkoski alleged the arresting officer had a duty to discover the information in the Carroll County application for statement of charges and that his breach of that duty caused Clementson's suicide.

The federal district court dismissed this claim, ruling there was no basis for Kunkoski's assertion that police had an affirmative duty to discover that Clementson was a suicide risk, even assuming such information could be available to an officer executing a routine arrest warrant issued by a judicial officer. The court rejected Kunkoski's argument that the police should have recognized the suicide risk, and ruled that the police must recognize their actions dealing with the detainee were inappropriate in order for this claim to go to trial. Kunkoski, et al. v. State of Maryland, et al., No. AMD 03-3296 (D.Md. 2004) (memorandum opinion).

No-knock search warrants not authorized.

The affidavit in support of the application for warrant included statements that police would “attempt to gain entry by the rush or No-Knock forced entry.” Police asserted no-knock entry was necessary because: the premises were used by 2 drug dealers; it was the officers’ experience that drug-dealers typically use firearms; and drugs can be quickly destroyed.

After a judge issued a warrant (implicitly authorizing no-knock entry), police forced their way in and found drugs and guns. The suppression court did not suppress the evidence, and the Court of Special Appeals affirmed. Both courts found enough in the warrant application to establish exigency.

But the Court of Appeals ruled that judicial officers are not authorized to issue “no-knock” warrants. There is no state law that specifically authorizes judges to issue no-knock warrants, and the law on warrant requirements is silent on no-knocks (Crim. Proc. Art., §1-203). Because there is a risk that the exigency supporting a no-knock warrant will change before police actually execute it, the Court ruled that the propriety of a no-knock entry must be judged case-by-case on what police know at the time of entry - not what they know when they applied for the warrant. Concerned that over-generalizations would lead to blanket issuance of no-knock warrants, the Court ruled a forced entry needs more support than generalizations about the link between drugs and guns, and must be supported by articulated facts (e.g., the suspects were known to carry firearms, known to react violently toward police, had violence-related criminal records, or were likely to destroy evidence). Reversed. Davis, Adams v. State, __Md.__ (2004).

Strip searches.

After the truck Chris Nieves was driving struck a police car, police learned Nieves did not have a valid driver’s license. While running the truck’s registration, police learned it was registered to a girl reported missing for 10 days, whose disappearance was possibly linked to drugs. Nieves was arrested and charged with giving false information (his name, where he got the truck) and various traffic violations. At the station, a lieutenant saw Nieves and recognized him from prior drug involvement. Based on this knowledge, plus possible involvement with the missing girl, the lieutenant ordered Nieves strip searched; the strip search revealed drugs, and Nieves was ultimately convicted of drug offenses. Nieves argued the strip search was unconstitutional because it was not based on reasonable articulable suspicion that he possessed contraband at the time of the search. The trial court upheld the search. The Court of Special Appeals reversed, noting there is a presumption against strip searching for minor or traffic offenses without some reasonable suspicion the arrestee possesses contraband or weapons, and holding that the circumstances here did not justify the strip search.

The Court of Appeals held that the reasonable, articulable suspicion standard applies to strip searches incident to arrest. “Prior drug arrests do not necessarily yield reasonable suspicion that an individual is secreting weapons or drugs on his person at the time of his arrest....” Because the lieutenant’s decision to have Nieves strip searched was based only on Nieves’ prior history of drugs and his possible involvement with the missing girl, the strip search conducted incident to arrest for a minor traffic violation was unreasonable under the 4th Amendment. State v. Nieves, __Md.__ (2004).

THE ADVANCED AND SPECIALIZED TRAINING UNIT

Collaborative Supervision and Focused Enforcement (CSAFE)

by Glen Plutschak, Administrator

Since early November, the Advanced and Specialized Training Unit (AST) has offered three regional training Summits to law enforcement officers, adult probation agents, juvenile case managers, treatment providers, prosecutors, educators, community leaders, and other CSAFE partners and stakeholders. These Summits offered workshops on some of the most critical issues facing criminal justice and public safety professionals. Workshop sessions included gang training, substance abuse identification, homeland security, neighborhood safety teams, mentally ill offenders, offender reentry, case management for female offenders, and other interesting topics.

Approximately 300 public safety and criminal justice professionals attended the series of Summits, making them some of the most successful training programs ever offered by AST.

AST was fortunate enough to have some very special guest speakers at the Summits. Secretary Mary Ann Saar of the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services, Director Alan C. Woods III from the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention, and Delmas Wood from the Department of Juvenile Services each appeared as the keynote speaker at one of the Summits to offer insight, support, and encouragement to the attendees.

Approximately 300 public safety and criminal justice professionals attended the series of Summits, making them some of the most successful training programs ever offered by AST.

AST is also pleased to announce that two new sites have joined the CSAFE team. Thanks to the initiative of Chief Richard Pounsberry of the Elkton Police Department, the City of Elkton is now a CSAFE site. Several meetings have already been held in Elkton, with police officers, adult probation officers, juvenile case managers, treatment providers, community leaders, and other partners all working together to reduce crime, reduce recidivism, and improve the quality of life for the citizens of Elkton.

The City of Easton is the newest CSAFE partner. The initial meeting was held at the Easton Police Department on October 20th. Representatives of the Easton Police Department provided sector maps of Easton as well as an incident analysis in order to define CSAFE boundaries. The Department of Parole and Probation provided information on caseload distributions as well as offender address information that could be reconciled with the police department's crime analysis. AST will provide a computer and additional training as well as continued technical assistance.

Continuing Education Courses

AST recently offered a workshop dealing with gender related issues. This workshop provided insight to public safety and criminal justice professionals on how female offenders differ from male offenders, both in terms of what draws them to criminal activity and how best to move them into law abiding behavior.

In December, AST offered a workshop dealing with children of prisoners. This session explained how children who have parents who are adult offenders are more at risk to also become involved in the criminal justice system. The session examined how criminal justice and public safety professionals can help mitigate this risk. Also on the horizon is a workshop dealing with mentally ill offenders from a policing, treatment and community supervision standpoint. Announcements will be sent out in the near future.

MARYLAND COMMUNITY CRIME PREVENTION INSTITUTE
MCCPI UPDATE:

by Patricia L. Sill, Administrator

MCCPI STAFF CHANGES:

Mr. Bruce Lohr, who was working as MCCPI's Youth Crime Prevention Specialist, has been chosen to assume the duties of Crime Prevention Specialist for the Institute. This position was formerly filled by Mr. Bruce Miller, who left to take a position with Johns Hopkins University.

MCCPI would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Miller for his work during his tenure with the Institute.

Mr. Lohr would welcome any suggestion from Maryland's law enforcement community regarding their crime prevention training needs. Please contact him at 1-800-303-8802 or 410-875-3429.

RESIDENTIAL AND COMMERCIAL CRIME PREVENTION TRAINING:

MCCPI offers one five-day Commercial and three four-day Residential Training Programs per year. These are held at locations throughout Maryland in order to allow maximum participation by law enforcement agencies.

Once all of the dates and locations have been finalized for 2005, notices will be sent to all law enforcement agencies statewide. Both the Commercial and Residential Training Programs are approved for in-service credit through the Police Training Commission.

During 2004, training was provided in Residential and Commercial Crime Prevention to 86 students from 37 agencies. Those attending represented all regions of Maryland and included municipal, county, and State Police agencies, sheriffs' offices, federal/military installations, colleges and universities, and security departments. In addition, two-day Specialized Residential Crime Prevention Training Programs were offered in Charles County, Frederick City, and Prince George's County, for a total of 74 officers. This two-day Specialized Residential Training has been approved for in-service credit and may be conducted for individual departments for 15 or more students, upon request.

For more information on MCCPI's upcoming programs, call Mr. Leo French or Mr. Bruce Lohr at 1-800-303-8802 or 410-875-3425.

MCCPI COMMUNITY PRESENTATIONS:

MCCPI also provides presentations and assistance, upon request, to community groups, businesses, youth groups, schools, and other groups or organizations that have crime prevention needs. Please contact MCCPI at 1-800-303-8802 or 410-875-3425 to schedule or discuss a presentation.

McGRUFF/SCRUFF TRAINING:

MCCPI plans to offer another one-day training on the Guidelines and Use of the McGruff and Scruff Costumes in June 2005, date and location to be announced. McGruff the Crime Dog is the symbol of the National Citizens Crime Prevention Campaign and Scruff is his nephew. The training will include a history of the McGruff Program and will also feature experiences of those who have used the costumes. The training is limited to 20 persons, and notices will be mailed out after details are finalized.

Maryland and Hawaii are the only states that currently offer this particular training, and this is the fifth time that it has been made available through MCCPI. As in the past, staff from the National Crime Prevention Council in Washington, DC will be invited to be guest speakers and address the class regarding McGruff and Scruff and the various ways in which they can be utilized to promote crime prevention.

For more information on the McGruff/Scruff training, call either Mr. French or Mr. Lohr at 1-800-303-8802 or 410-875-3425.

MARYLAND CRIME PREVENTION ASSOCIATION NEWS:

Its mission is to facilitate the promotion and advancement of crime prevention information and activities in Maryland. The MCPA is committed to effective and efficient crime prevention programming throughout the state.

MCCPI and the MCPA co-sponsor several training programs throughout the year. They also sponsor a three-day conference, generally in October. Membership in the Association is $35 per year for Active members, $40 for Associate members, $75 for Commercial members and $50 for Departmental/Agency members. Membership is renewable annually (January-December) and members may attend the training programs at a discounted cost.

Training announcements and correspondence from the MCPA are generated via e-mails. If you wish to receive MCPA training announcements and related MCPA information, you can sign up by accessing the MCPA website at www.mdcrimeprevention.org. If you do not have an e-mail address but would like to receive the MCPA mailings, please fax your request to Captain Ron Schwartz, MCPA President, at 410-887-5313.

GOVERNOR'S CRIME PREVENTION AWARDS:

For the past 25 years, the State of Maryland has honored law enforcement agencies, officers, citizens, and programs for their contributions to the furtherance of crime prevention programming in Maryland. MCCPI would like to take the opportunity to highlight some of these efforts through Training Notes. In this issue we are featuring the Thurmont Middle School "Phones for Cones Program."

The students at Thurmont Middle School decided to collect used cell phones to donate to the Frederick Police Department's cell phones for senior citizens program. Since many seniors cannot afford a cell phone, the Police Department provides cell phones free of charge that will dial 911 in the case of an emergency.

The students contacted the Roy Rogers Restaurant in Thurmont and made arrangements that anyone donating a cell phone for use by senior citizens would receive a free ice cream cone. They also designed a brochure, distributed fliers, collected the phones, and presented them to the Senior Victim Assistance Unit of the Frederick Police Department. Their goal was to collect 50 phones for seniors, and they far surpassed it, collecting over 100 cell phones.

MCCPI commends these middle school students for their demonstration of concern for others as well their strong civic responsibility.

The Institute hopes to feature other awards recipients in future editions of Training Notes. If you are interested in learning more about their accomplishments, call the MCCPI Office at 800-303-8802.

MARYLAND
DRUG ABUSE RESISTANCE EDUCATION
COORDINATOR'S OFFICE UPDATE:
D.A.R.E.

By Claude J. Nelson, Jr.

Training

Due to anticipated growth of D.A.R.E. in Maryland, the State D.A.R.E. Office is contemplating another two-week D.A.R.E. Officer Training seminar if we can establish a need to train at least 15 officers. Possible time frame for the training could be the beginning of February 2005, and in all probability the training would be held in central Maryland, possibly Prince George's County. As with all State sponsored D.A.R.E. training, this proposed seminar would be free of charge for any Maryland law enforcement agency, and will include lodging and two meals per day.

It is imperative that D.A.R.E. agencies assess their program needs and intentions to determine if training new D.A.R.E. / S.R.O. officers at this time would be advantageous. Keep in mind that D.A.R.E. Training now includes the S.R.O., as well as certification for both Elementary and Middle School D.A.R.E. curricula.

If you know of other officers or agencies that would have an interest in providing D.A.R.E. to the community, please encourage them to contact the State D.A.R.E. Office for information on implementation.

For further information, please call the State D.A.R.E. Office at 410-875-3426 or 800-303-8802.

Emergency Response Teams Pt. 3: Situation Specific VHS, color, 27 minutes

The purpose of this program is to stress cohesion within the framework of the Emergency Response Team and to examine the importance of each team member's individual role in contributing to the overall success of the team. Like any team, and the world of sports is a good example, the ones that enjoy the most success are the teams which know how to work together and which foster that team spirit and attitude. When every team member is aware of his/her role – enforced in practice sessions – it ensures a cohesive group operating for the common good of all in the Correctional environment, staff and inmates.

This program does not intend to stress a right or wrong way of responding to different situations, although some methods are tried and true through many years of use in many different facilities. The roles of individual team members may vary in your particular agency from what is demonstrated in the program. Stick with whatever works best for your agency.

Program breakdown:

- Introduction
- Disturbance in the Housing Unit
- Fire Drill in the Housing Unit
- 2 Inmates Fighting
- Refusal to Lock Down
